

TO SELL OR NOT TO SELL

Business Men of Edmonton Met to Discuss Disposal of Street Railway Franchise, But Meeting Broke Up.

A meeting of the business men of Edmonton was held last evening to discuss the question of whether the street railway franchise should be sold to a syndicate which has made an offer to purchase it, or retained by the city. Mr. A. Williamson, Mr. W. G. Studholme, Mr. J. O. Bissell as secretary, and there was a very large attendance. A similar meeting, privately called and not nearly so well attended, had been held at a private residence and passed a resolution favoring the sale of the franchise. This resolution was read at the opening of last night's public-called meeting, but no further action was taken.

A somewhat lengthy discussion, which was not always to the point, and in which many of the leading business men took part, appeared to favor the retention of the franchise by the city. Towards the end of the

Parhamites Tortured Woman to Death

Zion City, Sept. 20.—Accused of torturing to death Mrs Letitia Greenlaugh, 64 years of age, crippled during twelve years past, persons who had her son and daughter, and three other members of the sect of Parhamites, were arrested. The aged woman's neck was twisted and she was literally pulled to pieces to drive the devil from the pain-stricken body, it was said on Wednesday. The woman died the same day. Walter Greenlaugh, a son of the dead woman, broke down and confessed. According to what the police authorities say, he and Mrs. Greenlaugh, and James Greenlaugh, his wife, entered the Greenlaugh home, Zion City, the five knelt by the sick bed, prayed, then started to torture the woman by twisting her arms. When the aged woman screamed as the bones left the sockets, the Parhamites took the screams for those of the devil.

Three Mine Heroes

Sparta, Minn., Sept. 20.—Three heroes of the Canadian Ton Nicholson, Oscar Skeggs, and John McTavish, last night nearly gave on their lives in a desperate effort to save the three miners entombed somewhere near shaft No. 4, of the Malta mine in this place. Before they could be lowered to the bottom of the shaft all were made unconscious by smoke and had to be drawn to the surface.

It was half an hour before more help was restored to consciousness. Nicholson is a former superintendent of Malta, and Skeggs and McTavish are both miners. Air is constantly being forced down the shaft in hopes that if the imprisoned men are alive they can yet be saved. It is generally believed, however, that all are dead.

Mackay Succeeds Graham

Toronto, Sept. 20.—Hon. G. Mackay, Queen's Counsel, has been elected by the Liberals as leader of the opposition in the local house, succeeding Hon. Geo. P. Graham, who pointed to the Leader cabinet. The sessions will now be under the control of the native party, but it is its idealized condition that it was the best possible under the circumstances.

Ordered Longer Sheets

Harrisburg, Sept. 20.—Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, state health commissioner, issued an order to-day that sheets in the berths of sleeping cars running through Pennsylvania must hereafter be sufficiently long to turn over at the upper end of the blanket at least two feet, so as to prevent the blanket coming in contact with the face of the occupant of the berth.

Sued For Hundred Thousand

(Special to the Chronicle)—Tuesday, Sept. 20.—The court is sitting this morning, before Mr. Justice Riddell, a case involving a hundred thousand dollars was heard. Reserve judgment was delivered, and it is expected that the suit will not be an appeal. Mr. J. Treheway claimed the above amount as a commission on the sale of the J. B. L. Treheway mine at Cobalt. His defendant, Mr. W. G. Studholme, was in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount, together with interest since the issue of the writ.

WINNIPEG WHEAT MARKET.

(Special to the Chronicle)—Winnipeg, Sept. 21.—The price of wheat continues to advance. Yesterday cash was $1.05, May $1.11. European countries fear a shortage.

The price of coal is expected to advance shortly.

McGuigan Back With Grand Trunk

Toronto, Sept. 20.—P. H. McGuigan, who recently retired from the Great Northern, has gone back to the Grand Trunk system. Mr. McIutigan left the Grand Trunk to join the Hill system as Vice-President.

Emma Can't Enter U. S. A.

(Special to the Chronicle)

New York, Sept. 21.—It was learned from sources in the Immigration Department this morning that Emma Goldman, the anarchist printer, who recently is to be barred from the United States. After the assassination of President McKinley, which the murderer attributed to the inflammatory speeches of Goldman, she came to America, baring out anarchist who knocked at our gates for admittance. Imprisoned has failed to prevent Miss Goldman from preaching terrorism and destruction.

GERMANS' CELEBRATED SIAM KING'S BIRTHDAY.

(Special to the Chronicle)

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 21.—The King of Siam, who is at present on a visit to this country, celebrated his birthday yesterday. The populace rallied with him. Wine flowed like the water in a river, and free beer was supplied to the common people. His Majesty has made himself very popular during his short stay here.

MANUFACTURE OF PETITION AGAINST SUNDAY CARBS.

(Special to the Chronicle)

London, Ont., Sept. 21.—The petition against the allowing of a street car service in this city on Sundays has received four thousand signatures.

We haven't heard a sound from the Pound since we found that Mayor Mills is not around, but has been at the Municipal Convention at Medicine Hat.

Canadian Held Up in London

London, Sept. 20.—A Colonial's adventure in London, within a few hours of reaching the Home Country, was described at the Old Street police court on Wednesday, when Henry King, 22, was charged with being concerned in assaulting and robbing Samuel Johnson, a bridgeplayer, living in Middlesex, Oct. 1. He had arrived on the train, and came to England, where he landed at 5 o'clock at night he was in Spitalfields, and was staying in Paddington Station. He told the court, he was attacked by two men. He resisted, and was thrown to the ground, and struck. His pockets were picked, and he lost £5 gold, 10 silver, and a 100/- pound note payable in London. The man escaped, and he informed the police.

Detective Rutherford said he was in the General Post Office on Wednesday in the afternoon.

Those Calgary editors, who in the opinion of others are expected to make a name for themselves on the front page, have come to the aid of the Quebec Bridge disaster, and the necessity otherwise of the introduction of Ontario laborers.

The Edmonton early closing bylaw having been advertised in both the City Dailies, is now operative, despite the fact that no one saw the advertisement, and it is now understood that it should be read, only advertised.

A fine pair of wild ducks, the gift of Fred Sasse and W. H. McMahon, were presented to us today.

Fred has been in the country so long that he not only knows where to find the game and how to shoot it, but he has a treaty with every coyote to leave him undisturbed and alone.

Capt. Hamilton (for he is a military man, as well as journalist) is one of the best known and most popular men in Canada, and does up ready stuff from the federal capital. He is connected with the Toronto Globe and South African Mail, attended by a notable "scop." While the Canadian entered their first action at Moberly River, Mr. Hamilton got a dispatch from the censor, and The Daily, with the latter paper in the world to publish the following telegram:

"Why doesn't Hon. Frank Oliver send Wagner out to Vancouver? He should be the boy to trip up those pesky Jane, and he could be so easily spared hereabouts, too."

CURRENT COMMENT.

The Chronicle has seen one or two occasions lately referred to the deer driving away coyotes in the districts surrounding the city. These animals are daily becoming bolder and organizing efforts were being made to get rid of them. Examination just outside the city limits the other day one resident had his flock of twenty-one turkeys completely annihilated. A lady from the Chronicle yesterday that unless some steps are taken to destroy the wolves there will not be sheep left in this section of the province. The cause of the animal's habitat, the animals, is given as hunger, due to the scarcity of rabbit, on which the coyote in great measure in past years has fed. The government of the Edmonton Journal, eastward of Streeterville, belongs to the front.

The contribution of the Col. is interesting and entertaining and those who have not seen it may be interested. Mr. Bowden made something like a triumphal progress in his Rimmer so far. Last night, at the Mount Royal Hotel, he was received a cheque for sixteen dollars. This would seem to argue that a vigorous pursuit of the pestiferous brute would be a profitable business.

The inspector was surprised the other day when a man brought in a dozen pairs of the split cars of dead coyotes, thinking that he had a sumptuous meal of slaughter and the bounty. That, it appears, is the system in the North Western States. The inspector could not accept this and the hunter, went back and bought all the pelts with the ears stitched on.

Another hunter brought in the heads of the animals, but even that, while a sure evidence that the animals were not quite in conformity to the rules.

With the coyotes exterminated—if that can be permitted—comes from Toombs. A resident out there has a Billy goat that roams about the place with the sheep and poultry. Some time ago a coyote, with the countenance of a fiend, was seen, was trailing up the flock of sheep on murder intent. He followed closely for some time until the goat, fearing trouble, dropped behind the flock, and the coyote was sneaking past Billy savagely butted it in the side, killing it instantly. The farmer avers that he had not seen a coyote on the plain since, and a number of other days offered a good price for a Billy goat in the city, which was wanted as a protection from the wolves.

This has been the theory for some years that the wolves will not touch sheep if a number of bells are worn by individuals in the flocks, but these people are very sceptical of any protection from the unnatural boldness of the animals setting them at defiance.

It is probable that after the busy harvest season is past some organization among the farmers will be formed to put an end to the killing of these destructive animals.

In the following article in the Toronto Star on Ontario newspaper men in the West, Col. G. C. Porter of the Toronto Telegram, who is the contributor, falls into one of the many errors of grievous errors. For instance, "The Editor of the Saskatchewan Capital" is Mr. Atkins, a Torontonian.

Shades of The Phoenix and our old friend Jim Alder. The man who publishes, edits and directs the Phoenix, not the Capital, at Saskatoon, one of the brightest journals in Saskatchewan, is J. A. Atkins, who is a graduate of Queen's, not Toronto. He was Western Correspondent of The Globe and is a credit to the craft.

The Chronicle, in justice to an old opinion, with whom we had many a rally on the journalistic mat, but who always played the game according to the rules.

"One of the prominent writers of the West," says Col. Porter, "is Charles Lewis Shaw. He, too, got his training on the Toronto Star. Now, what do you think of that? That's what he writes for the Capital." The editor, Mr. Hyman is a rich man but he drew from the people of Canada during that period of absence $1,250.

A COINCIDENCE OF GREAT MINDS.

Mr. Simmonds, a lawyer in the town of Strathcona, has undertaken to lay down a daily programme for Mr. Jas. Weir, commissioner of the board of trade. This is the most absurd thing we have read for a long time. And Simmonds is Irish, and Simmonds wants the secretary of the treasury for $1,000 a year. Some people do want a lot for their money. Finally, for the good sense of the S. B. of P., Jim won out—Saskatoon Phoenix.

DREW HIS PAY.

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—Mr. Hyman drew his pay as Minister of Public Works down to the end of August this year. That is ten months and more after he came to Ottawa to take charge of the department. For more than nine months of this time he was out of the country, and but for a supposed mistake in his letter of resignation he would never have been absent so long. Mr. Hyman is a rich man but he drew from the people of Canada during that period of absence $1,250.

clearly how it was written. I never have had the pleasure of meeting William II myself. What I have always insisted upon is work submitted to the editor in a deep voice. "I am absolute authority on all political questions," Charles F. Raymond began to the short lived "Morning Post" in Hamilton. The next day it blurted: "Charles Charon was here last night to see me, and when he joined the Toronto Star, after having served a further apprenticeship under the veterans, Mr. James J. L. Carter, Mr. Hamilton Head, and his son, Lieutenant "Davy" Hastings, then city editor, and now editor and publisher of the Dumaguete Gazette, Philippines, he had to add his name to the list of the bright young men of the Canadian Daily News, formerly of the Kingston News, and T. W. Quayle, of the same bright paper, and now of Ottawa—J. W. Stoughton of the Edmonton Journal, erstwhile of Streeterville, belongs to the front.

Speaking of the Conservative Leader at a meeting in Montreal, the Mont. Royal Witness (Liberal) says:

"We do not know who at the present time is backed by the most voting strength in the country."

Mr. Bowden made something like a triumphal progress in his Rimmer so far. Last night, at the Mount Royal Hotel, he was received a cheque for sixteen dollars. This would seem to argue that a vigorous pursuit of the pestiferous brute would be a profitable business.

"My good woman," said the editor briskly, "that is utterly impossible. You are right in your judgment. I am not outside work—which I think a woman can do. There is a woman's column of The Sun, and you are right."

"Miss Jessie seemed annoyed that all her elaborate preparations were thrown away on this man who had never raised a shilling in payment at her except once, during their conversation."

"I do not aspire," she said, rather sternly, "to be a woman's column of my own woman's column myself, and, unlike Mr. Grant Allen, I never met a woman who could not be a woman."

She succeeded in making the editor lift his eyes toward her for the second time.

"Neither do I intend to have you address so that you may send a wire to me if you think you have anything that you think I can do. What I wish is that you will let me know when you are ready to go."

"My good woman," said the editor briskly, "that is utterly impossible. You are right in your judgment. I am not outside work—which I think a woman can do. There is a woman's column of The Sun, and you are right."

"Miss Jessie seemed annoyed that all her elaborate preparations were thrown away on this man who had never raised a shilling in payment at her except once, during their conversation."

"There was something of triumph in her smile, however, as she left the hotel, looking like a自动机 in motion. She hurried down the stairs and to her waiting cab.

"Good night to the Cafe Royal," she said to the cabman.

When the horses drove up in front of the Cafe Royal, Miss Jessie Baxter was waiting for him. She was the stalwart soldier in gold lace, who guarded the entrance, hurried from the office of the Evening Graphite.

"Do you know Mr. Hardwick?" she asked him.

"Oh, I know him," was the reply. "I think he is inside at the moment, but I will not enter."

He stepped forward, and as he did so appeared, looking perhaps a trifle disconcerted at having his whereabouts so accurately ascertained.

"I have a most important bit of news for you that wouldn't wait," said Miss Jessie.

"I am a most important bit of news for you that wouldn't wait," said Miss Jessie.

Baxter had in half an hour from now you will be writing your tomorrow's leader, showing in force and forcible language the most iniquities of the board of public construction.

"Oh, I cried the editor, brightening. "If it is anything to the discredit of the board of public construction, I am glad you told me."

"Well, that's not a compliment to me. You should be glad in any case, but I will forgive you bad manners."

"I will not be glad in any case," said the editor.

"And you will not be glad in any case."

"I will not be glad in any case," said the editor.

"Perhaps our definitions of truth might not quite coincide. However, if you will write me address on card I will do my best to get you a job in a place where you can do what you are doing."

"I will do my best to get you a job in a place where you can do what you are doing."

MISLEADING THE PUBLIC.

An Ignorant Showman.

(From "Canada") A representative of Canada while passing along the Strand the other day was attracted by a hasty-linged Commissioner in a semi-military uniform announcing that "for the sum of $100,000,000 worth of men, women and children, our representative was ushered into a formal-looking chamber, from whence the cities, rivers, and mountains of the Dominion were to be viewed."

In imagination crossed the Atlantic ocean, a cinematograph brought the St. Lawrence River to our gaze. Our representative was requested to be treated to a glowing description of the attractions this truly royal river has for those whose fortune has given the opportunity of sailing up this great waterway of Canada; but no. "The last frontier," said the Commissioner, "is one of the most dangerous rivers in the world for navigation, and wrecks here are of frequent occurrence. What would you say to living unglued?" "And this, ladies and gentlemen" (as an imposing city appeared on the screen), "is Montreal, the largest city in Canada—and the dirtiest. The only good feature in it is that from the time the mercantile metropolis we were suddenly transferred to the Rocky Mountains."

This, continued our guide, "is the home of the Red Indians. I heard it stated that there are 100,000 Indians left in Canada. That is not true. There are about seventy thousand, most of whom live on reserves. The Government will not allow them the right to vote or to sit in Parliament. From my own experience I have gathered that it would be equally desirable to apply the same rule to man. Indians seem to be the scum of the British Columbia followed, and here the orator excelled himself. The fish that were being transferred, much against their will, from the sea to the land, looked more like salmon than fish according to our informant, "they were not." "These fish," he said, "are very valuable, from a commercial point of view, but they have little flavor, they can easily be made by adulteration to resemble salmon. The canners add the salmon flavor in them, and sell them to the English market as genuine salmon, which the public does not. This remarkable statement was received by the house-keeping ladies in the audience with undisguised astonishment. Then followed a series of probably, mental resolutions to henceforth banish British Columbian fish from their culinary larders.

A few seconds' buzzing and we were back again, asked this time to the wilder side of Quebec, which was described as the "finest city in Canada." Two minutes later we were in the English school, en route to Dover, where the passengers had to take a new route between England and Canada?); and in another two miles we were back to the Strand.

How could not for the fact that the writer is only recently returned to England, after a stay nearly five years in Canada, during which time he traversed the continent, from coast to coast? In Vancouver Island, he would have left the "show" with a very favorable impression of the great Dominion. But he knows better. However, such irresponsible statements emanating from a young man, whose knowledge of Canada must be gauged by his age, to make us say the least of it, be extremely superficial, is calculated to do harm. We are led to believe that even though he had been asked to make a public audience by this "guide," language of the nature used by him is more like the statements of a deported immigrant than those of a man who claims to be acquainted with "the Canada lan."

CONSCIENCE IN POLITICS.

"Mr. A. B. Ames, an eastern M.P., is quoted in the Montreal Witness as stating that enough young men are willing to fight for the next election for me to think it would be safe to make or unmake the political destinies of either party, and Mr. Ames also intimates that these same men shall have no objection to fighting for their principles if this looks beautiful and optimistic, but it is an absolute fact that at least nine out of every ten first voters will vote for the first party whose men who will be counteracted by those who will be counteracted by the opposite change. About a more sensitive conscience, "the mills of God grind exceedingly slow," and the author of this, the development of morality or the lack thereof, is something to which the public perception of right is scarcely perceptible in one generation. It is only when a party becomes absolutely corrupt, or when the leaders strive for control, will the country desert a party. So long as the government is still able to advance the country's interests, and the cause in which it is engaged is still popular, no one need look for the downfall of the powers that be."—Inasmuch Free Lance.

On Monday evening next Dr. McAttee will address the young people of the Presbyterian church. Special music is being arranged for all young people of the city are cordially invited.

In view of the record breaking performance of the big new Cunard liner Electra last week, the oil painting of this ship at 1000 ft. high will now be seen in Sutherland's window as an advertisement for the Cunard line, which will be found interesting.

The Edison fire brigade was called out to a fire in the Windsor hotel about 10 P.M. Saturday last evening about eight o'clock. The brigade made a fast run, but on arriving at the annex, found that the fire had already been extinguished. The alarm was caused by a lighted cigarette being thrown incausally or some clothing in one of the rooms. The slight damage that was sustained was chiefly caused by smoke and water.

Miss Vance, sister of the late Mrs. Lapointe, arrived in the city last night.

Miss Jenne MacLeod will open classes in piano and organ here next week. Wednesdays and Saturdays. Persons desiring lessons should leave word at Mr. R. E. Peel's jewelry store. Lessons will be given at a reasonable fee for the use of a piano. Miss MacLeod has had splendid success in preparing pupils for the Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations. Miss MacLeod is herself a graduate of the Boston Conservatory.

Dugald Macleish, the distinguished attorney who lately won the Lieutenant-General's prize and who was tendered a smoker on Monday night last, has adopted the Simple Life. He purchased a homesteader's outfit a day or two ago, consisting of a pair of bullocks and the usual other utensils for the purpose.

"ONE OF THE 14"

Some ankles have clumsy figures while others enjoy the graceful lines of a sandal.

Some feminine ankles are swollen and bulky while others are as slender as a larrow's.

Whether clumsy or graceful, bulky or slender the method of training is the same.

The ankles are completely surrounded by muscles. If these muscles are constantly strained and stretched by the feet walking about they will easily build short foundations. Bulky ankles cannot fail to ensue.

Dolly Varden reduces bulky ankles and preserves slender ones.

Why? Because of their Free Flat Tread, which allows the feet to rest free and flat on the sole. This prevents bending and bowing of the ankles and the consequent stretching of the ankle muscles.

Because of their newly devised steel arch support, which holds up the tail and keeps the vertical ankle muscles from the tension occasioned by falling arch.

Because of their Dead Level Ball and Heel Balance which throws the ankles into their natural vertical position.

The Dolly Varden Agent in your city will be pleased to show you how to Reduce Bulky Ankles. Purchases or investigations equally welcome. In the States and Canada at the same price $5.00 and $4.00. Every Pair Goodyear Welded. (To be continued.)

mounted the wagon seat, and is on his way to the Victoria district. Of course Mack took his rifle along with him, and it will be an unusual day for the sheriff that gets inside the 1000 yard circle.

A valuable mare belonging to Chas. Black, one of the old timers of Strathcona, was stolen two days ago and some miscreant. The shot gun fired from a shotgun at close range, and the mare was struck in the shoulder. She will probably live to be destroyed. The Mounted Police are investigating the case.

Last night the members of the G.P.H. station staff at Strathcona gave a farewell dinner to Mr. C. G. D. Longmore, who is leaving to take up a new position in the Canadian Pacific railway company. He is entering a clerical career. The assembly took place at the Golden Rule Restaurant, the new proprietor of which, Mr. E. Moore, provided a dainty and appetizing repast. After the dinner speeches and toasts were the order of the evening, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Wooden Anchors

The British and foreign race intermediate between French and Spanish lords, have for all time been great seamen, and some of their craft and daring are still to be seen in our navy and in other leading types. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of bygone civilizations is the primitive wooden anchor. It is a heavy iron ring with a central post, and a number of arms radiating from the post. These wooden anchors are in all probability the earliest type used by man. Pliny describes twenty centuries ago. The wooden anchor is rough hewn out of three branches, so fastened to a central, also a wooden ring, in such great weight that they will hold a vessel in the water. Here is a cheap but effective anchor for comparatively light boats. It can be made on the spot, and is only little more than a wooden squal. It has to be left imbedded in the rocks.

Properties of Gold

Pure gold is unaffected by the atmosphere either at ordinary temperatures or even in the mildest of heat. It also resists the action of common acids when used singly. Moreover, it confers its properties more or less upon copper and silver when these metals are alloyed with gold.

Gold is the only metal which twelve karat gold will withstand the action of nitric acid and the atmosphere at ordinary temperature. It also resists the action of acids when used during annealing. Nine parts of gold may be alloyed with ten parts of platinum in an ordinary furnace and the resulting alloy will not be affected.

A larger proportion of platinum will free itself from the gold on solidification, and a homogeneous alloy of the two metals cannot be obtained.—Jeweler Circular-Weekly.

Before the Bar

The term "before the bar" and "before the bar" are of English origin. The "bar" in question is the barrier or railing which separates the judge and the other officers of the court from the parties to the suit. In England, during the parties to a suit presented themselves before the bar, accompanied by their solicitors. A lawyer, after hearing the required evidence, presents the claim of the party, and passing a satiric examination, was then entitled to appear before the bar.

The English word "barrister" suggests the technical meaning of this word.—Scrap Book.
